Riverside's Brenner-Fiedler Named Inland Empire Top Workplace for 2022

*Employee Survey Honors
Industrial Automation Firm Seventh Time in Nine Years*

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (Feb. 2, 2023) – A national recognition program has once again honored Riverside's Brenner-Fiedler for its outstanding workplace culture as measured by employee feedback.

In business since 1948, Brenner-Fiedler supplies industrial automation and pneumatic systems for industries, businesses and applications throughout California, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico.

Top Workplaces is a national awards program based solely on feedback gathered through a survey administered by employee engagement technology partner Energage. The confidential survey measures 15 culture drivers considered critical to an organization's success, including alignment, execution and connection.

“It takes a winning team to create winning results,” said Deborah Kloman-Lichter, Brenner-Fiedler’s co-owner and CEO. “We’re all energized by the hard work, dedication, collaborative problem-solving, inspiration and joy that comes from being on a winning team.”

In 2022, the family-owned business expanded with the purchase of competitor Deken Power's assets, eclipsed several in-house sales records and welcomed nearly two dozen new team members. On track to continue its winning streak, Brenner-Fiedler will celebrate its milestone 75th anniversary later this year.

Brenner-Fiedler has been honored with the Top Workplace designation seven times in the past nine years. Riverside's Press-Enterprise newspaper recognized 37 Southern California companies and organizations as Inland Empire Top Workplaces for 2022.
