Making Your Facility Safe

While most manufacturers are back to work, the struggle to keep facilities safe and compliant with the latest rules and regulations regarding workplace safety have just begun. Our Return to Work Guide is a comprehensive COVID-19 pandemic preparedness and response guide for manufacturers that includes information on:

- Expanding/resuming operations
- Monitoring and detecting cases
- PPE
- Cleaning and disinfection
- Procedures for 'suspected' infection
- And more

Our guide also includes a comprehensive checklist that will help ensure your facility is safe.

CMTC Spotlight

Bryant Fuel Systems, LLC (BFS) is the successor company to Bryant Fuel and Power Systems (BFPS). BFS' strategic goals for revenue growth depended on the ability to retain and grow sales. It became obvious to management that it would soon outgrow its existing 15,000-square-foot facility and would need to invest in automation equipment if it were to meet this demand. Ownership had located a site in neighboring Nevada and began planning to move out of California. CMTC helped BFS restrategize and remain in California while still moving to a new space that would provide space for them to grow.

WORKPLACE SAFETY

How Workplace Safety in Manufacturing is Changing Amid

COVID-19

Workplace safety is at the top of everyone's mind right now. Manufacturing facilities have opened up (if they shut down at all) and companies need to make sure they are in full compliance with CDC and OSHA regulations, and also meet the guidance coming from within their county. It can be overwhelming, but there are some key recommendations to keep in mind and resources that can help.

CYBERSECURITY

Start With the (Cybersecurity) End in Mind

Cybersecurity is a complex topic no matter what industry vertical it is applied to. In order to reduce that complexity, it helps to frame cybersecurity in the context of the business. For manufacturers, there is a familiar concept that can be used: begin with the end in mind. So, what does the end look like in terms of cybersecurity? Incident response.
